

Halifax Tells World Britain To Fight If War Must Come

LONDON, Aug. 25.—In a broadcast to the world Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax said last night that Great Britain will fulfill its pledge to fight for Poland if war cannot be averted.

Following is the text of the speech broadcast by foreign secretary Viscount Halifax last night:

It may be helpful if I say a few words about international developments which have led to the recall of parliament. The strained situation which exists between Germany and Poland began with claims and grievances expressed by Germany in regard to Danzig and the Polish province which is usually called the Polish corridor.

The tension thus produced has been increased by mutual recriminations about the treatment of minorities.

Every country must of course be concerned to secure just treatment for minorities and must naturally feel a particular interest in the minorities allied to it.

No one in this country certainly would wish to defend conditions under which such treatment was denied to any minority section.

COOL EXAMINATION

But if complaints exist let me not be too quick to say that no settlement hundreds of times more difficult, but then they are fairly brought to cool examination before the public opinion of the world.

It is impossible to ignore the fact that accusations against Poland have a strong resemblance to those made last year against Czechoslovakia, and that it is right to remember that there is a strong Polish government in power.

Of the general attitude of Poland it should be admitted that it is the campaign which appears to threaten not only the independence of Poland but also the peace of Europe as a nation, the declarations of Poland leaders have been firm, but quite unprovoked.

READY FOR PARLEY

I am confident that they have been and are at all times ready to discuss the differences between them and Germany, if they could reasonably certain that the discussion would take place under free conditions, without the menace or with the assurance that the results of the discussion would be loyal and permanently binding.

We may ask then why these questions cannot be settled by discussion? The answer is that Germany and Poland. They gave no reasonable answer to the Polish suggestion in 1934 was suddenly brought to an end by German and Polish.

The problem itself, therefore, ought not to be incapable of settlement by the real discussion of the matter from much deeper causes. The life of all nations depends in the last resort on the maintenance of the one for another's rights and the reasonable confidence that they can secure their life in their own hands provided they do not interfere with their neighbors' right to do the same.

ALPHE ODOMINATION

Throughout their history the British people have always been opposed to attempts by one power to dominate Europe at the expense of the others.

Therefore after the events of the earlier part of this year which threatened all countries, we tried to make it clear by word and deed that we were prepared to meet any country which threatened its independence immediately threatened and were ready to defend its freedom.

That is why we introduced compulsory service and made efforts to strengthen in times of peace and expand the armed forces of the country and to strengthen the civil and military defenses of the country in a state of full preparedness. That is the reason why we gave our undertaking to Poland. That is the reason why we engaged, along with France, in negotiations with Russia.

SURPRISED WORLD

You may have heard the report about the agreement reached between Russia and Germany which threatened the world. These two governments have been attacking one another, and it was a surprise to the world that the Russian government had made it clear where they stood.

Now that the possibility of a conflict exists, it is not surprising that many have taken steps to declare their position. In the world but in a special message to Hitler.

BRITISH POINT OF VIEW

No doubt, therefore, can we have any doubt that we mean to fulfill the obligations which we have assumed. May I state quite simply what

Appeals

I resolve her difficulties and our own problems in the world that I need solution. But if misunderstandings between Germany and Poland are to be removed, I repeat that there must be some certainty about the future of Europe, and that is why we feel obliged to resist attempts to alter the situation by force.

There are some who say that the fate of a European nation is not a concern of ours, and that we should not look far beyond our own frontiers. But they forget that in failing to uphold the liberties of others we run a great risk of betraying the principle of their own, and with it our own freedom and independence.

We have built up a society of values accepted not only in this country but in many other parts of the world.

SECURITY UNDERMINED

If we stand still and see these values set at naught, the security of all those things on which life itself depends is in jeopardy. I have no doubt that those with whom rests the issue of peace and war will measure their responsibility to present and future generations before precipitating a struggle in which many nations of Europe might immediately be involved, and whose duration would be measured in years, with even those who can stand aside from active participation will be vitally affected.

I earnestly hope that in the face of all the consequences of a refusal to respond to the appeal which is taken which cannot be retraced, that the great majority of you will have been moved as I was by the appeal for peace made by King George VI. at the meeting at Brussels yesterday.

You also will have heard the solemn words which were spoken by the Pope tonight.

POPE'S MESSAGE

His Holiness, the Pope, in his message sent today by President Roosevelt to the King of Italy suggesting that the Italian government should formulate suggestions for the peaceful solution of the present crisis.

I pray earnestly that these appeals in words used by the Pope and the King of Italy will be accepted by men. In this moment of anxiety I feel certain that the ground for peace will be found in the unanimous approval of our people.

I have no sort of doubt that His Majesty King George VI. can rely on the support of the whole country in any measures that it may be called to take to defend the cause of just dealing between nations, and preserve the place of honorable freedom in the world.

Mrs. E. Allen, Daughter Remanded to Aug. 30 In Tar, Feathering Case

CALGARY, Aug. 25.—Mrs. E. Allen and her daughter, Betty, Thursday were remanded until Aug. 30 on assault charges in Calgary's tar and feathering case.

Mrs. Allen testified she had no intention of harming Miss Knowles but wanted to put something over her that would be hard to get off and that would make the nurse hide.

I wasn't jealous that induced Mrs. Allen to tar the 35-year-old nurse for two years had kept a friendship with her husband, Dr. A. C. Allen, and Miss Knowles, and my own happiness. Mrs. Allen claimed the nurse had been with her on July 18, the night of the affair, were proper and didn't think she would be arrested.

MINISTER INFLUENCE Mrs. Knowles, who formerly worked for Dr. Allen, allegedly said she was introducing him to the doctor and was the woman who Mrs. Allen said she believed had a "wicked, sinister influence" over her husband.

It was interesting that Dr. Allen claimed, through Dr. Allen to beat her, caused her about the house and that she was in a most miserable place on earth.

The 50-year-old mother told the court she had been in a friendship with her husband who was "dead and inactive," by having Mrs. Knowles and Miss Knowles promise during interviews that they would not say anything about the case after six months' reconciliation with her husband in 1929 that she was in communication with Mrs. Knowles. The disavowal was introduced on July 18.

WENT TO HOME Mrs. Allen, second degree witness called by McKinley Cameron, K.C., said that she was in a friendship with Mrs. Knowles' nurse July 18 about 9.30 p.m., with the intention of getting the nurse to accompany her to her home and interview the doctor, that she was in a communication with Mrs. Knowles. She believed Mrs. Knowles had been responsible for the entire affair and that she was introducing him to the doctor.

VERY BRAZEN, BOLD I said to Betty, this is the person I want to see. "What do you think of it?" said the witness, adding that Mrs. Knowles was very "brazen and bold," and "laughed."

Pope's Peace Appeal F.D.R. Pleads Peace FOR UNION

Will Not Enter Immediate Consideration in Event of War

OTTAWA, Aug. 25.—Neither conception nor the organization of an expeditionary force for overseas service would be taken into immediate consideration in Canada in the event of an outbreak of hostilities, judging from Prime Minister Mackenzie King's declaration of policy in the house comments last March.

In the course of a statement on foreign affairs given the house last night, the prime minister said: "The present government believes that conception of men for overseas service would not be necessary or an effective step. Let me say that so long as this government maintains its policy, no such measure will be enacted."

"We have full faith in the readiness of Canadian men and women to rally for the defence of their country and their liberties and to resist aggression by any country seeking to dominate the world by force."

In the same address, dealing with defensive measures in Canada, the prime minister said that the government believes that the maintenance of a large standing army would be a waste of money and that the best way to defend the country is by maintaining a strong navy and a strong air force.

CASTEL, GANDOLFO, Italy, Aug. 25.—An unofficial English translation of the Pope's peace appeal broadcast Thursday follows: A grave hour strikes anew for the world, and we are called upon to make a decision of tremendous deliberation in which the spiritual authority is called upon to intervene.

And it is so with all who who bear so much responsibility. May you bear throughout your lives the voice of that Christ from whom the world received the great school of love and in which millions of souls place their confidence in line of right, which only the word can dominate all the upper of the earth.

And so here we are with you leaders of peoples, statesmen, military leaders, writers, radio newsmen and stump speakers, and all others who influence the thought and action of their fellow men. We are united by the same love and the same truth and the same faith, and we are called upon to make a decision of tremendous deliberation in which the spiritual authority is called upon to intervene.

VERY SERIOUS DANGER OF WAR IN SHORT TIME

Lord Maugham Warns in Modifying Previous Statement

OTTAWA, Aug. 25.—There is a serious danger of war within a short time, Lord Maugham, Lord Chancellor of Great Britain, warned in a statement made in the House of Commons last night. He said that he will officially open the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

Lord Maugham, only member of the British cabinet absent from London, said that he had made a statement to the House of Commons last night, but that it was not as serious as some people thought. He said that he was not a seer, but that he was a realist, and that he was not a prophet.

The Voice of England

The measured earnest words in which Lord Halifax spoke to the world Thursday are notable on at least four important points.

First, it was the voice of England that was being heard, not the special pleading of a party leader. The Labor party and Liberal group have both endorsed the government's stand. Lord Halifax was expressing the basic conviction of the British people in pleading for just dealing between nations, and the maintenance of freedom in the world.

Secondly, Britain did not want war, but she had given her pledge not to shrink from it if all the ideals which alone make life worth while are to be backed away by the sword of a brutal aggressor. The very fact that the crisis stemmed from a minor customs quarrel with Poland over Danzig proves that Germany is ready to make any pretext, no matter how trivial, the setting for an assault upon other nations. On such terms, under the recurrent threat of military domination, peace of Europe and the world cannot be maintained.

The pact between Russia and Germany, thirdly, was not even worthy of a rebuke when larger issues already darkened the horizon. Halifax made no more than a passing reference to Russia's conduct. No one can alter the past, and that treaty has already been signed. All Halifax was concerned was to make abundantly plain to Hitler that the Russian agreement has not abated by one iota the responsibility of Britain to preserve Poland, to the best of her ability, from being gobbled up by Germany. This ringing pledge, reiterated with emphasis and without qualification, forms an irrevocable statement of Britain's determination.

Finally, Lord Halifax performed an invaluable service in defining the issues for which Britain stood ready to fight, if the dread alternative of war must be embraced. She will unsheath the sword for the same exalted ideals which have ever impelled her to engage in a major war on the continent—to keep Europe from becoming the slave of military domination, enforced by one power-drunk nation, to preserve the integrity of treaties, to maintain the independence of small nations, to banish fear and insecurity from the minds of men wondering where next aggression may strike in the night, and above all, to secure that freedom based on justice is not exiled from the world.

Those are the issues, as seen by England today. Nothing short of them is at stake. Lord Halifax said, as was stated in these columns yesterday, that Britain has warned Germany no plainly of her attitude. She has said that she has no excuse for repeating her colossal blunder of 1914 and believing Britain will not fight, if the worst has to be faced.

With moving eloquence Lord Halifax fully made the closing part of his speech, a comment on the brave appeal for peace by the King of Belgium. That the country was the theatre of war when Germany embarked on her last fatal military adventure. Is Poland to be the new Belgium of Europe? If Hitler makes her so, of his own choice, he has no one but himself to blame if Britain and France quickly rally to his aid, as they did on the western front in 1914. Germany has been warned and the sin of war lies on her head alone.

As the Sky Darkens

Britain, in the interests of peace, will be governed during the crisis by a cabinet armed with virtual dictatorial powers, by consent of the people. Parliament entrusted such authority to the government, and it is adjourned to the end of the month. Such powers had to be had if Britain was to act swiftly in the storm that may break at any moment.

A dictator can frame a policy without worrying about public opinion. A democracy cannot. That is the great initial advantage a despot has. In self-defence, Britain, without in any sense abandoning the restraints of democracy, has decided not to be caught napping by the German war machine. The opposition parties have simply given an extraordinary measure of temporary power to the government to be used with vigilance to guard the nation's welfare. The speed with which the emergency powers bill was sanctioned shows how united Britain now is.

Baldwin was once laughed at for saying Britain's frontier was on the Rhine. Later it became the Danube. Now it is the Vistula. Public opinion was slow to admit the need of enforcing the mandates of liberty in these areas. It now knows better. The frontiers of freedom have touched Poland and there Britain is pledged to guarantee them.

Ottawa Stands Watch

The federal cabinet would be unworthy of its trust if it did not keep constant and unrelaxed watch of the grim tragedy now unfolding in Europe. They have been charged with the responsibility of seeing that Canada is not overwhelmed by events as Europe hovers on the edge of war. Mr. King is to be commended, therefore, for recalling all ministers to the capital city and demanding that attention to the international crisis take precedence before all other matters.

Canada has every right to be anxious about the tense situation, since Britain is much more deeply entangled now than last September. Great Britain had no direct treaty obligations to fight for Czechoslovakia, beyond the general duty which belonged to a League of Nations member to oppose aggression. She has a binding pledge, however, to fight for Poland when that country is attacked. Hence the greater stress and peril in the crisis now holding Europe in its grip.

As the senior Dominion, Canada has a primary duty to herself and the British Commonwealth of Nations. It is a duty she cannot escape. The cabinet must see that all necessary precautions are taken to guard this country both against subversive propaganda from within and the threat of assault and provocation from abroad. While this is so, Canada can face whatever perils that may then have to be met in the firm conviction the national policy shaped by parliament can instantly be backed up by the aroused and unflinching strength of a resolute nation.

Mr. Roosevelt's Intervention

The urgent message Mr. Roosevelt sent Hitler is important not simply because it identifies Germany as the aggressor in any conflict that may break out now, but because it shows he is ready to do all he can to rally the sympathy of the United States to the side of Britain and France.

Senator Borah who led the fight to shackle the President in the bonds of the neutrality bill said there would be no war in this Congress and would not oppose his own judgment to the considered views of the government. Mr. Roosevelt told him he was assuming a "serious responsibility" in this hampering his powers. But there is no law to prevent him writing a note to Hitler and saying that he has done, in plain, pungent language.

The President is determined, as he said three weeks ago, to let no occasion go by without "taking his coat off and joining in the struggle for peace." Despite the neutrality bill, the President, believing America is united in its hatred of war and in its opposition to the aggressors who cause it.

The Communists Speak Up

The Communist Party of Canada probably wishes by now it had kept its own counsel on the present trouble in Europe. Its dominion commission which spoke issued a four-page statement which simply dripped with the emotion of its appeal to have Russia included by Britain and France in their peace bloc against Fascism. They did not know that before they could send their statement over Canada their leader Stalin would jetson their half-baked prejudices by making eyes at Hitler and telling Communists it is out of date to get angry at the menace of Fascism.

The one good thing in sight on the international horizon at the moment is that the about-face by Russia will make every self-respecting Communist crawl into a hole and pull it in after him.

But even that will not make other people forget that their beloved Soviet, exemplar of a new morality between states, did not scruple to lamentation from British and French experts, while at the same time talking behind closed doors with Germany, against whom that information might one day have to be used.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

For pure silliness recommend me to the Tacoma Chamber of Commerce. Outside the city is Mount Rainier, scene of a snowslide tragedy a few days ago. The Tacoma believed Rainier to be the third highest peak in United States, but the National Park Service reports that Mount Massive in Colorado is 14,418 feet or ten feet higher than the pride of Tacoma. So the Chamber of Commerce has arranged with a party of mountaineers to climb the Rainier summit and build a cairn eleven feet high "to roll up a big snowball"—anything in fact that will add eleven feet to the top stratum. This done the blithe and simple Tacoma will still be able to boast, they think, that they have the third highest peak in the country outside their doors.

Sounds like a man donning a top hat to make himself tall.

Here's a commentary on peace-time war preparation. The National (U.S.) Munitions Control Board in its summary of arms exports for the first seven months of 1939, disclosed that $35,000,000 worth of war materials had been shipped to France in the month of July. Most of it is represented by aircraft.

AIR FLEETS amount yet to be delivered. Great Britain's purchases of aircraft amount to over $20,000,000 and Canada about $600,000 with a further $13,000 to be delivered.

The only sales of aircraft to Japan were an autogyro and a Douglas Model DC-4 airplane valued at $725,000, which had been started by Secretary Cordell Hull requested airplane manufacturers not to make further sales to powers engaged in bombing civilian populations.

Contracts for $75,000,000 of airplanes for the U.S. Army have been placed, but "Peace, Peace," but there is no peace—only the peace of preparation.

While the Air Ministry's report on the three-day aerial war games over Britain state that fast fighters proved more than a match for bomber planes, some thought that raiding aircraft might easily have picked out London during the early morning and blown it to smithereens, because of the intricate network of underground black-out regulations were observed.

No town quite expunged its lights, but in London many buildings and areas remained undarkened.

I'll wager all the lights would go out if a real enemy was to be announced. Major Edwin Shepherd, editor of "Aeroplane," who made observations from a Wellington bomber, says the crew of the bomber dodged all the searchlights, but the crew was not in a hurry to do all he can to rally the sympathy of the United States to the side of Britain and France.

Senator Borah who led the fight to shackle the President in the bonds of the neutrality bill said there would be no war in this Congress and would not oppose his own judgment to the considered views of the government. Mr. Roosevelt told him he was assuming a "serious responsibility" in this hampering his powers. ### Current Comment

By J. S. COWPER

British Reactions to Crisis
LONDON.—The Times (Independent) said today: "A Russo-German pact cannot alter the fact pledges given by this country and France to Poland."

The authoritative newspaper said: "Berlin propaganda gave one more proof of their inability to judge others except by their own standards when they coolly assumed that Great Britain 'having suffered a grave diplomatic defeat' will hardly now care to carry out her obligations to Poland."

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative), referring to the summoning of parliament, said: "It is impossible to forget the parallel with that fateful third day of August 25 years ago when the peace of Europe was hung precariously in the balance."

Discussing Sir Neville Henderson's visit to Fushner Hitler yesterday this paper said: "That act can leave in the Fushner's mind no room for misunderstanding. The decision which now rests in his hands cannot be reached by him in ignorance of some of the consequences."

The Daily Mirror (Independent) asserted: "Two things are necessary—that the whole nation should prepare itself steadfastly for any event and that every effort should be made to convince the rulers of Germany and the mass of the German people that Britain and France will not rest until the bombardment of bluff and the battle of nerves."

The Evening Standard (Independent) said Russia apparently intended to withdraw from European affairs and "disinterfere herself in any aggression which Germany may contemplate against her neighbors in the east or west."

The Star (Liberal) said that while Hitler may not rest until he has won the war, he has inevitably lost Italy either sooner or later.

"It isn't in the nature of things that a Roman Catholic country like Italy or New Spain should suffer abroad in a new war to be tied in an unholy alliance to the Soviets they regard principally as godless."

The Star added that all Hitler's calculations for the Far East "have been destroyed by the affront to Japan."

The Manchester Guardian (Liberal) correspondent of the News-Chronicle (Liberal) and independent member of the British parliament, analyzed the Soviet action this way:

"It seems probable that the decision to conclude a pact of non-aggression was only reached a few days ago, the final initiative being an agreement by the British and French military missions that the Polish government would still object to the presence of Russian soldiers on Polish territory in the event of war."

"The Soviet government, it was explained to me by one of its highly placed supporters, was not prepared to play the part of a bulky chucker-out of other services were welcomed when clients were obnoxious but who was not nice to know in the ordinary way. Hence the decision to bring negotiations by the Manchester Guardian (Liberal) said in London many buildings and areas remained undarkened."

"If it is difficult to imagine the Soviet government conniving at German aggression on Poland it is far more difficult to imagine its agreeing to withdraw its troops from Poland."

"Even that is suggested by those who remember Russia's past history in Poland and who can think of no better explanation of the facts. On its most favorable interpretation the Russian move, coming at such a time and in such a momentous situation, is a calculated move to inevitably impair the confidence of the democratic countries (those 'non-aggressive powers' so recently praised by Molotov) and encourage Fascist powers in their designs."

On This Date

By FRED WILLIAMS

Sixty years ago Sir John A. Macdonald was in London to discuss Dominion of Wales was only a dozen years old. Yet already constitutional growing pains were evident in the young daughter of Britain. Canada's title was entitled to more than colonial status; that she had a right to have a say in her own affairs, and especially external affairs which would be hers; and Sir John, in a letter written in London August 28, 1879, thought that the first step toward that goal was the appointment of a Canadian agent in London, a sort of semi-ambassador, who could be a liaison officer between Ottawa and the colonial office, and through the latter with the foreign office. Westminster did not like the idea, of course, but it was one of those things which had to come, and less than a year later Sir Alexander Gait, whom many regard as the real force behind the Confederation pact, was the choice as the first high commissioner.

Gait was the right man for the job. It was no easy one; official red tape was hard to wade, but before his resignation in 1883 he had established the high commissioner's office, and in due course the other self-governing colonies also had their representatives in London.

MY BLACK EYE

One day, as a small boy, I appeared in school with a black eye. The teacher asked how I had got it, and when I truthfully told her that I had fallen against a lamp post, she openly scoffed. That was one of my first experiences of injustice at the hands of uncomprehending elders. Long years afterward, I sent flowers to that teacher's funeral, but I had not forgotten her uncharitable judgment on my black eye.

What long wounds our careless uncharitable natures inflict! The hasty, unpremeditated word may rankle for a lifetime. Only a deep-flooding spirit of Christian love can deliver us from thus hurting our fellows.

This world is full of people whom I admire; but on the whole, I think I rate highest those kindly souls whose speech is always charitable. I instinctively know that they have been fellow-suffering with Jesus.

Remember our speech. O well-loved Neighbor, make us more kindly in all of our judgments; for human souls are sensitive. Amen.

This was copied from the Manchester Guardian, and the author was not known.

The beauty of the prayer is greatly enhanced when seen in the original form, here given:

THE MOTORIST'S PRAYER

Grant me a steady hand and watchful eye

Thou savest life. I pray no car of mine
May take away or mar that gift of Thine
Shelter those, dear Lord, who bear

From ill and all calamity.
Teach me to run my car for others' need,
Not through love of speed,

Ample evidence of appreciation was shown by the many envelopes, some reprints taken from the rack inside the church door.

Easier for Farmers

Editor, Bulletin: Many claim that what farmers need is better prices and less cost of production. Granted—but how can the cost of production be reduced, as the open markets of the world determine such prices. But lowering costs of production by governments—that is simplicity is tantamount to raising prices for farm products.

The government at Ottawa can really lower the costs of production of farmers need to produce with. Implementation of any and every kind could be put on the "free list" free.

TELEPHONES REPAY LOANS OF $265,000

Fallow Reports System
Also Places $100,000
in Reserve

This year, the Alberta Government Telephones have repaid to the provincial treasury, for loans advanced, a total of $150,000 and have redeposited treasury notes for $75,000, both of which amounts were borrowed by previous administrations, according to Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works and telephones.

In addition, $100,000 has been placed in the A.G.T. repurchase fund.

"Since 1935 all the rural telephone lines have been paid to the provincial treasury and in the process the number of subscribers on rural lines has been almost doubled."

BUILDS GOOD ROADS
Speaking of the highways situation, Mr. Fallow declared that "One of the major functions of the government is to provide good roads because good roads mean business virtually to every person working for a living in the province."

He declared that under the present highway policy of the government, "if I were to be given $1,000,000 for highway purposes, I could complete the hard surface of every mile of arterial highways in the province and grade the standard and gravel roads of market highway in the province."

Explaining the system of road construction, Mr. Fallow explained that instead of paying contractors for use of their machines, the government purchased its own. Rentals were paid to the government on the same basis as if the machines were rented from private individuals. These rentals are paid into a revolving equipment account out of which new machines are purchased.

EQUIPMENT BUSY
By keeping equipment to about the amount sufficient for needs and running it constantly in use, the government can save $24,000 a year—equipment is not lying idle and overhead charges are not piling up.

Latest highway construction machinery has cut out of dirt moving to a fraction of the cost of dirt moving a few years ago," said Mr. Fallow.

By using their new system of renting from themselves, the government has shown on operation of these machines, a profit of $142,000 in the last year.

Through improved methods, the government now builds two miles of road for the cost of one under previous methods.

FREDERIC HUDON
chief Canadian trade commissioner in Great Britain, who said here today that Canadian exports to Britain had improved.

He added that, as soon as transportation difficulties were solved, there would be a market for Alberta oil in Britain.

Through The Mill
"My friend, there are some lovely ladies in this world—but most of them talk too much," wrote my old friend, Tux-Ton, ancient Peruvian philosopher. And if you had been in police court Friday morning you would have realized that he was right about the talking part, at least.

In fact, things got so bad in police court Friday morning that Magistrate Miller had to shut up shop and go to the city hall to stop a woman, accused of assaulting a neighbor, from talking.

The neighbor keeps turkeys, and it seems that they get into the accused woman's yard. And the woman's daughter takes after the turkeys. And the neighbor comes out to protest. So the accused woman's daughter takes very unkindly and makes for the neighbor's place her face. But the neighbor reaches up and pulls the daughter's hair and the two of them go rolling in the road. Then the accused comes hopping up, throws dirt on the neighbor woman and smacks her a couple of good smacks. Then the neighbor woman goes to the cops.

The accused woman was still yapping about her side of the story when the cobbler got fed up and adjourned the case until Saturday.

A young man with a long record, who was convicted on a charge of theft of four signboards, was sentenced to three months in jail. Another young man, convicted of dangerous driving, was assessed $10 and costs.

CANADA TRADE WITH BRITAIN SAID GAINING

Commissioner to Address
Business Men at Luncheon

Volume of export trade between Canada and the United Kingdom has increased, although there has been a reduction in world trade generally due to unsettled conditions, Frederic Hudon, London, for the past five years chief Canadian trade commissioner in Britain, said here Friday.

Mr. Hudon addressed a meeting of local business men under the auspices of the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in the Macdonald Friday noon.

"Although there has been a general contraction in the volume of international trade due to unsettled conditions in the world, the volume of trade between Canada and the United Kingdom has increased steadily," he said.

EXPORT FIGURES
Reports to the United Kingdom for the fiscal year, 1931-32, were approximately $175 million, or an increase of 13 per cent.

There have also been notable increases in the export of wheat and hams which have come up to $100 million in their value in the United Kingdom.

"The figures show that for the year ending March 31, 1939, the value of Canadian exports to the United Kingdom was $22,600,000 in 1937, $27,000,000 in 1938, and $28,000,000 in 1939."

Exports of wheat, he said, showed an increase of $1,000,000, as compared with nine millions in 1937 and six millions in 1938.

Mr. Hudon said the export of hams, bacon and cheese was of particular interest.

ALBERTA NEED SAID CONTROL OF ITS CREDIT

Manning Addresses Social Credit Meeting at Winterburn

Permanent solution of the economic and financial problems facing this province at present, according to the speaker, lay in the hands of the people, by the people, of their own credit. Hon. Ernest C. Manning, minister of trade and industry, said a Social Credit meeting at Winterburn Thursday night.

He said that all other remedies advocated were palliatives and temporary measures. Control of credit was the permanent solution.

"So far as the new election is concerned, control of credit will be a major issue," he said. "The people who are in control of the money will want to go on and carry the fight forward until we gain control of our own credit, or whether they will leave this control, as has been the case in the past, with the money markets and financial houses and their henchmen, the old-time political parties."

TELLS OF MEASURES
He dealt with various measures undertaken by the government for reduction of Social Credit control of credit.

In this respect he instanced the Credit Regulation act and declared that, if it had been left alone, it would have been a disaster.

Mr. Manning discussed the extension of the Social Credit movement departments and emphasized that, as a result, great improvement had been made in the social credit movement.

He dealt with the efforts of the government in saving a tremendous amount of money leaving the province in insurance policies and how the government had reduced its expenditure by 20 per cent.

By opening its own fire insurance company, the government would keep millions of dollars in the province, which otherwise would go out, he said.

MRS. VICKERS PLAYS MRS. MANNING IN GOLF FINAL

Yugoslav Scores Surprise By Whipping Bromwich

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 25.—Ferenc Pincec, sturdy Yugoslav, pulled the Davis Cup upset of the year Thursday by handing a four-set wallop to Australia's top-ranked Jack Bromwich and keeping his country in the tennis chase.

Displaying perhaps the most brilliant tennis ever here this season, Pincec ran up a surprising 6-2, 8-6, 6-4, 6-2 victory.

His teammate, Drago Mitić, had less luck with Australia's Adrian Quist, losing 6-4, 8-6, 6-3 in the opening match.

The outcome of this final interference play for the right to challenge the United States Davis Cup holders this year must rest upon today's doubles, when Mitić and Franjo Kučer play Quist and Bromwich, the newly crowned United States titlholders.

The consensus at Longwood last night was that only a doubles victory can upset indirect—could bring the Yugoslavs through the five-match round.

FOUR AMERICAN GOLFERS REACH FOURS AT BANFF

BANFF, Aug. 25.—Four Americans, one of whom recently took up residence in Calgary, moved into the semi-finals of the Prince of Wales tournament at Banff 1939 annual golf tournament Thursday.

The draw paved the way for a final between players who all Seattle and New York their homes. Wilder H. Ripley of Calgary, a former New Yorker who won the medal honors, won his bracket with a 3 and 4 win from E. Beck. Talle, his next opponent, will be J. Betsam, of New York, who edged out Carl Hayward, Tacoma, Wash., 3 and 1.

The semi-finalists from Seattle and New York are Ralph Wainley and Ernie Kitchin. Wainley who can shoot the difficult, trap-studded course almost as effectively with a bow and arrow as with golf clubs, turned in a 4 and 3 victory over A. J. Mackay of Medicine Hat.

The defending champion, Don McKenzie of Turner Valley, Alta., carried Kencham to the last green before losing, one up.

LAST DAY

Every woman knows that there is likely a certain "half-do" to bring out all her best features. But often it's been hard to discover that particular coiffure—unless she has the services of a highly trained hair stylist. Therefore, we are delighted to announce that the Beauty Salon in the new Edmonton Store will have on its staff for the opening just such a stylist. Mr. J. W. Young, schooled in a great beauty academy of the United States, brings to Edmonton the beauty "magic" of individual hair styling—"magic" that should transform you in an hour!
